Didsbury Will Hold No Fair

Didsbury's Annual Fair which was scheduled for the 25th and 26th of this month has been postponed until next year. This was the information given us by Mr. J. V. Benoit, President of the Agricultural Society after a meeting of the directors held on Wednesday evening. Hitherto the Fair has always been held rather late in the year in this town, either in the last of August or early in September but never before has it been placed so late in the year as this. It is the last on the list of provincial fairs. Owing to lateness and taking into consideration the fact that the farmers are going to be in the middle of their busiest season and cannot stop to give their support and attendance, which is a large factor in our Fair, it would mean the success or failure of it. The board of directors therefore decided that rather than run it and have a failure it would be better to leave it over this year.

This was to have been Didsbury's twenty-first fair and many people will be disappointed at its postponement as the fairs for the last twenty years have been worked up to a better basis all along and under the present capable management has been a big drawing card for people from a large district.

However under the circumstances it is probably best and next year will witness an extra strong congregate.

MERTENS-REEVES

A quiet wedding was solemnized on September 23rd, at the Free Catholic Church, Calgary, by the Rev. A. D. Curtis of Strathmore, when Miss Mary Sybil Reeves, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Reeves of Strathmore, became the bride of Mr. Frank Mertens, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mertens of Strathmore.

The bride was attended by little Miss Joan Reeves, while the bridesmaid was supported by her brother, Mr. Maurice Mertens. After luncheon at the home of the bride, the wedding party went to the home of the bride's mother, where a wedding reception was given. The bride and groom were motored to Banff and Lake Louise where a week's honeymoon will be spent.

On the eve of her wedding the bride was presented with a handsome silver tea and coffee service suitably engraved, from the staff of the C. P. R. Department of Natural Resources, Strathmore, where she has been employed as stenographer for the past three and a half years. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Mertens will reside in Didsbury.

ALBERTA BUTTER IN FRONT RANK

Creamery butter made in Alberta took a total of 149 prizes out of 234 offered, or 63 per cent at exhibitions at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Brandon, Saskatoon and Vancouver this year. Of 50 first prizes, Alberta took 25, of 74 seconds, it took 54, of 102 thirds, it took 53, of 5 fourths it took 3, and of 5 fifths, it took 1.

Out of 11 open championships offered, Alberta took 8. In the Calgary Exhibition six provinces competed, in three others four provinces competed, and in two others three provinces competed.

SCHOOL FAIRS START

The coming week will see the commencement of school fairs in the province. About 350 will be held this year, which is an increase of between 15 and 20 over last year.

DUCK SEASON

The hunting season for ducks and geese will open this year on September 15, next September 1. The bag limit is 20 per day or 200 for the season. The season for prairie chicken and partridge is from October 15 to October 31.

Catastrophe in Japan

CATASTROPHE IN JAPAN

OSAKA, Sept. 25.—So vast an area of Japan has been devastated by the greatest earthquake in the history of the country that it will be long before the actual loss of life is known. The most reliable estimates of the dead up to the present reach as high as 200,000 to 300,000. Tokio and Yokohama with surrounding towns which formed the centre of the disturbances, are almost completely in ruins. For two days Tokio was swept by flames, and apart from the loss of life caused directly through the falling of buildings, thousands must have perished in their attempts to make their way through the fire zones, and other thousands through exhaustion.

Yokohama, Japan's busy port, is a city destroyed. Probably more complete destruction has been wrought there than in the capital itself for its great docks were torn asunder, its shipping wrecked and its public buildings levelled to the earth.

All advices received here indicate a succession of earth disturbances in that area extending for many miles inland and to the north and over, where the destructive forces were augmented by explosions, the bursting of water mains, the overflow of rivers and the terrible overpowering rush of tidal waves.

Details of geographical changes are lacking, but it is reported that new islands have been formed from the bed of the ocean, while whole sections have disappeared. Rivers are said to have changed their course, and volcanoes are erupting in various districts.

The disaster spared none who stood in its path. Many members of some families have perished but none far the only notable foreign residents in the list of killed is the American consul at Yokohama, Max D. Fitzgibbon, who, with his wife is believed to have been buried in the ruins of the consulate.

The American ambassador, Cyrus E. Woods, and all members of the Embassy at Tokio are known to be safe, but many of the diplomatic representatives of the other nations have not been accounted for or has any word been received of their fate.

The newspaper Osaka Asahi estimates the earthquake dead at 220,000 which includes 150,000 dead in Tokio, 100,000 in Yokohama, and 70,000 in Yokosuka. Word has been received that the fires in Tokio died out Monday night, but at the same time couriers carry appeal for food, clothing and medical supplies and assistance for the hundreds of thousands of homeless refugees who when succored speedily cannot carry.

For the moment all efforts are being directed first to ascertaining the extent of Japan's vast losses both to citizens and secondly, to rushing all assistance in every form to the stricken districts. There has been no time yet for assessing the terrible consequences of the earthquake nor for the preparation of a list of the prominent dead, Japanese or foreign residents.

The warships of many foreign nations are on the sea already bringing assistance, which fast serves to give encouragement to the government and the people in their great calamity.

OPERA HOUSE SECURES MARSHALL NEILANS' "MINNIE"

Marshall Neilans' latest picture, "Minnie", released by Associated First National, has been secured by the Opera House and will be shown here next Friday and Saturday.

Matt Moore and Leatrice Joy are featured in the story. Even the followers of Marshall Neilans pictures will get a surprise in "Minnie" because Matt Moore for the first time in his career appears in character. As usual he does a clever piece of acting, full of wholesome human humor and Leatrice Joy, who is known for her beauty, has covered up her pretensions and come forth as a family drudge, and she leaves the screen better for her excellent portrayal. Miss Joy and Matt Moore are going to win new laurels with the showing of "Minnie". They are going to give the whole motion picture world a good hearty laugh.

EXTEND THE FORGIVENESS

Further days of grace will be given delinquent taxpayers in rural municipalities, and improvement districts by virtue of action now being taken by the Department of Municipal Affairs. Hon. R. G. Reid is notifying local members of the Legislature and Secretaries of Municipalities that in the case of improvement districts the Crown will not take ownership of land, defaulting under tax recovery proceedings, until the first of December. The suggestion is also being made to Municipal Secretaries that they may more properly adopt a similar course in respect to lands due to pass into possession of the municipalities.

Mr. Reid points out that the Tax Recovery Act provides that title to such lands shall be taken after the expiry of the redemption period, but there is no stipulation as to how soon this shall be done. In view of the prevailing harvest and market conditions and the probability that farmers will not get such returns for their crops for some months, it has been thought desirable to call attention to the fact that Municipal treasurers are not to be law compelled to issue transfers immediately upon the expiration of the year, unless they so desire.

The effect will be to give taxpayers a further opportunity for redemption, since the government is suggesting that taxpayers desirous of redeeming be allowed an extension of three months, and in regard to lands due to be taken over by itself that is the course already decided upon. It is thought that by December 1 a considerable number of delinquents will be able to meet their tax bills and redeem their lands.

"All right, Wade," a man cried. "As you like with the case. This is mostly your funeral, anyhow."

"Yes, let the—go," called out a dozen voices.

By this time the close formation of the soldiers was broken. From that time, men had left the ranks in pursuit of skulls, and finding the way back blocked by the crowd, had taken their own initiative thereafter. Wade and Santry could not be everywhere at once and so it happened that Len Townbridge was the only one of the leaders to be present when Tad Talbot was taken out. The crowd around Townbridge did not make Wade's quiet air of authority, and besides, he had altered his own blood to be freed by "clean up." He might have attempted to save the murderer had time of need, but when the confession was swung from him, the look, cleared of any bracing opinion, lay upon him as a common felon, and the crowd, the butting of an eyelash, fairly fell in a lumped heap, his body rubbed by bullets.

Meanwhile, Wade and Santry were searching for the chief cause of all their trouble. Race Moron. They were not surprised to find his office vacant, but as the night went on and the saloon buses of dawn appeared in the sky, and still he was not found, they became anxious. Half of the gratification of their efforts would be gone, unless the agent was made to pay the penalty of his crimes. Wade inquired of the men he met, and they too had seen nothing of the city agent. The search carried them to the further end of the town without result, when Wade turned to Santry.

"Hant up Len and see if he knows anything," he said. "I'll meet you in front of the hotel. I'm going to ride out and see if I can dig up any news on the edge of town. Moron may have made a getaway."

With a nod, Santry whirled his horse and dashed away, and Wade rode toward toward an approaching accident, evidently of faint heart, who meant, so it seemed, to be in for the "hook," even though he had missed the "crack." A little contemptuously, the ranchman put his question.

"Yes, I own him, beastwise. I think so," the man answered. "He went past my house when the shooting first started. Now are the boys making out?"

"Which way did he go?" the cattle man demanded, ignoring the agent's question. The resident pointed in the direction taken by Moron. "Are you sure?"

"It was him, I am, and I think I was."

Wade rode slowly forward in the indicted direction, puzzled somewhat, for it led away from Sheridan, which should have been the agent's logical objective point. But a few moments' consideration of the situation made him think that the route was probably chosen for strategic reasons. Very likely Moron had found his escape at the other end of the town block, and he meant to seek to secure a quiet point along the railroad. Wade drew rein, with the idea of bringing his friends also to the pursuit, but from what his informant had told him Moron already had a long start and there was time to make a dash for it, with assistance. Besides, if it were still possible to overtake the quarry, the ranchman preferred to cuttle his difference with him, face to face, and alone.

He urged his horse into a lope, and a little beyond the town dismounted to pick up the trail of the fugitive, if it could be found. Thanks to a recent shower, the ground was still soft, and the cattleman soon picked up the trail of a shoe horse, leading away from the road and out upon the tuff. By the growing light, he was able to follow this at a fairly rapid pace, and as he neared on the direction came to him that if the agent continued as he was now headed, he could hope to come out eventually upon the Burlington Railroad, a full seventy miles from Sheridan. The pursuit was likely to be a long one, in the event, and Wade was regretting that he had not left some word to explain his absence, when he suddenly became aware of the fact that he had lost the trail.

With an exclamation of annoyance, he rode back a hundred yards or so, until he picked up the tracks again, when he found that they turned sharply to the right, plunged away from the railroad. Puzzled again, he followed it for half a mile until convinced that Moron had deliberately eluded Crawling Water. But why?

What reason could the man have which in a moment of desperate danger to himself, would lead him to delay his escape? What further devilry try could he have on foot? There was nothing to lead him in the direction he was now traveling, unless Wade's heart suddenly skipped a beat and he had been deceived by his forehead, for Dorothy Furnell and her mother had come into his mind. There was nothing ahead of Moron but the Double Arrow ranch! If that were the agent's objective point, there would be nothing between him and the woman save Barker, and the "drop" of a gun might settle that! But he had the big black horse been spurred as cruelly as he was then, when Wade planned his heels into his hands. With a start the horse halted and then settled into his stride on all the gentle breeze in the rider's hands, becoming a rushing gale. But the pain which the animal had felt was nothing to the fear which surged at the ranchman's heart, as he recognized himself bitterly for having left only one man at the ranch, although at the time the thought of peril to the women had never occurred to him. With the start that Moron had made, he reasoned that he stood small chance of arriving in time to do any good. He could only count upon the watchfulness and skill of Barker to Falling that, there was but one hope, that the rider who had come on the horse might not be Moron after all. But presently all doubt of the man's identity was removed from the ranchman's mind, for on the very next ahead his quick eyes caught the glint of something bright. Sweeping down toward his heels, he picked it up without stopping, and found that it was a half-empty whiskey flask. Turning it over in his hand, he read the inscription: "To Race Moron from his friends of the Murray Hill Club."

CHAPTER XXI.

With Bare Hands at Last

In later years, when Wade tried to recall that mad ride, he found it only a vague blur upon his memory. It was conscious only of the fact that he had traveled at a speed which, in sane moments, he would have considered suicidal. Trying the big black over the roughest ground of the higher levels, he rode like a maniac, with out regard for his own life and with out mercy for the magnificent horse beneath him. Time and again the gelding stumbled on the rocky footing and almost fell, only to be urged to further efforts by his rider.

the cattleman thought of a short-cut through a little wooded timber-trail, which would save him several miles; but it was crossed by a ravine out of a winter avalanche like a wall of such a gigantic ledge. To descend into this ravine and ascend on the farther side would be a tortuous process, which would take more time than to continue by the longer route. But if the gelding could jump the narrow chert in the trail, the distance saved might decide the issue with Moron. On the other hand, if the leap of the horse was short, practically certain death must befall both animal and rider.

Wade decided, in his reckless mood, that the chance was worth taking and he rode the black to the edge of the chert, where treacherous, but no less, the animal refused the leap. Cursing furiously, Wade drove him up again, and again the gelding balked. But at the third try he rose to the pick of the spurs and took the jump. The horse's forelegs caught in the pit one footing and the struggling, slipping animal snorted in terror, but the ranchman had allowed the impulse of the leap to carry him clear of his saddle. Quickly twisting the bridle reins around one wrist, he cried the horse's name with his free hand, succeeded in pulling him up to a firmer footing. For some minutes afterward he had to soothe the splendid brute, patting him and rubbing his trembling legs; then, with a grim expression of triumph on his face, he resumed his journey. The chance had won.

There was less likelihood now that he would be too late, though he thought that he might be so still made him urge the horse to the limit of his speed. He kept his eyes fastened on a notch in the hills which marked the location of the ranch. He rode out on the clearing which held the house just in time to hear Dorothy's second scream, and plunged out of his saddle, pulling his rifle from the scabbard beneath his right leg as he did so. From the kitchen chimney a faint wisp of smoke curled upward through the still air, and a crowd of louds behind the barn and a cock nestled in the corral. Everywhere was the atmosphere of peace, save for that scream followed now by another choking cry, and a barking, collie, which dashed about before the closed door of the house in the stiff-legged manner of his breed, when excited.

Wade burst into the house like a madman and ran into the back room, where Moron, his face horribly distorted by passion, was forcing the girl slowly to the door. But for the protection with her supple body afforded him, the ranchman would have shot him in his tracks.

"Gordon!" The overwhelming relief in her face burned into Wade's soul like a branding-iron. "Don't shoot! Oh, thank God!" She fell back against the wall, as Moron released her and began to cry softly and brokenly.

Smiling with baffled rage and desire, Moron whirled to meet the cattleman. His hand darted, with the swift drop of the practiced gun, toward his hip pocket; but too late, for he was already covered by the short-barreled rifle in Wade's hands. More machine even than the yawning muzzle was the expression of terrible fury in the ranchman's face. For a space of almost a minute, broken only by the terse breathing of the animal and a strangled sob from Dorothy, Moron's tale hung on the moment of an eyelash. Then Wade slowly relaxed the tension of the trigger finger. Shooting would be the quick to satisfy him.

Moron breathed more freely at this sign, for he knew that he had been heavier death than ever before in all his adventures, and the sway of his passion had weakened his nervous control. Courage came back to him rapidly, for with all his faults he was, physically at least, no coward. He took hope from his belief that Wade would not now shoot him down.

"Well, why don't you pull the trigger?" His tone was almost as cool as though he had asked a common place question.

"I've heard," said Wade slowly, "that you could yourself a good origin, and I'm a little fighter; that you've never met your match. I want to get my hands—hands—on you."

Moron's features relaxed into a grin; it seemed strange to him that any man could be such a fool. It was true that he had never met his match in rough fighting, and he did not expect to meet it now.

"You're a bigger man than I am," the cattleman went on. "I'll take a chance on you being a better one. I believe I can break you with my hands—like the rotten thing you are."

He paid no heed to Dorothy's fearful protests. "Will you meet me in a fair fight?" Wade's face suddenly contorted with fury. "If you want to meet me, I'll meet you. His grip on the rifle tightened significantly.

Here and There

Nearly four thousand men were recruited by the Canadian Pacific Railway agents in England for work in the harvest fields of the Canadian West.

A sudden demand for wheat in Scandinavian markets has caused increased activity in the movement of grain through Vancouver. Four boats left with bulk wheat for ports of Norway and Sweden, marking the first direct grain shipments from the Canadian Pacific coast to Scandinavia.

The rapid increase in the export trade of Saskatchewan during the past year or two has been the outstanding feature of the provincial dairy industry. Recently the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries made a shipment of 25,000 lbs.
of butter to China.

The export of gold bullion, gold coin, and fine gold bars from Canada, except as deemed advisable by the Minister of Finance, and as licensed by him, is prohibited until July 1, 1924, by proclamation issued in the current issue of the Canada Gazette.

Breaking all 1923 passenger traffic records, the Canadian Pacific
S.S. "Metagama", westbound from Glasgow via Belfast, docked recently at Quebec, and Montreal the same evening, with a record number of 382 cabin and 1,078 third-class passengers.

"There are hundreds of first class farm workers in Scotland anxious to come to Canada, and the finest material Canada could wish for, but their wages are sufficient to barely support them and they are unable to accumulate funds for the passage."
This is the opinion of Thomas
Scotland, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Colonization and Development office in Glasgow, who recently arrived in Canada with a party of Scotch immigrants bound for the western provinces.

To J. K. L. Ross, director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, goes the honor of catching the world's record
fish with rod and reel. At St.
Ann's Bay, N.S., he landed a tuna weighing 712 pounds; length, 9 feet
2 inches; girth, 6 feet. Commander Ross used a Vom Hofe tuna rod and reel, No. 39 thread line, with mackerel for bait. His catch took three and a quarter hours to land.

The world's wheat crop this year
is estimated at 3,318,000,000 bushels, as compared with 3,104,000,000 bushels last year, an increase of 214, 000,000 bushels, according to figures carefully compiled by the international Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The estimated shipments from supply countries of the world for this year is 600,000,000 bushels, of which Canada is expected to supply 100,000,000 bushels, or about one-third.

Canadian trade with Australia is on the increase, according to returns made public by the Bureau of Statistics. Canadian exports to Australia for the twelve months ending with June were $19,824,239, as compared with $12,200,438 for the corresponding period ending June, 1922. Canada's imports from the Commonwealth have also increased. The imports from Australia for the last twelve months were $1,245,829, as compared with $1,275,271 for the year previous.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26
THE GREATEST CATASTROPHE

The mind cannot grasp a catastrophe which claims its victims in hundreds of thousands. The disaster in Japan seems to have been the most devastating, counted in lives, of any in the history of the world, although there is a tradition that a catastrophe in China hundreds of years ago carried off a greater number of people, but the records of those days are incomplete and possibly the toll of lives was somewhat exaggerated.
From an earthquake there is no escape. It is a storm from which there is no refuge. It carries in its wake death by fire and famine. It is relentless in its devastation.
The complete returns of the Japan disaster have not yet been ascertained but there is reason to believe that it is the worst calamity in the history of the world.

AFTER DEATH

Conan Doyle predicts that the late President Harding will try to communicate from the spirit world by mediums. You will read more of this later as you follow the daily news.

The idea, of course, is that Harding passed on before he had finished his work here on earth, and that he will want to send back a guiding voice from the Hereafter.

The matter is so largely speculative that it can hardly be discussed editorially. But in pondering the rather abrupt death of Warren G.
Harding—a death coming at the peak of his activity—it must occur to many of us that no man ever really finishes his work here on earth.

We are withdrawn from the scene
just as we begin to reap the fruits of our efforts. Five-sixths of a man's life is gone before he begins to get sound sense—vision, judgement, wisdom.

Life seems to be a training school a sort of spiritual gymnasium. In it we develop spiritually the same as we develop our muscles by exercise with dumbbells, by work or by gold or other sports.

Our training begins as soon as we are conscious in the cradle. It is a training that never stops. And in all probability, it never ends.

Every person at times wonders:
"Why am I living? What is it all about?" Especially so when we gaze out among the stars in the vast sky, which is our greatest symbol of infinity and eternity.

Many find their answer in religion.
There must be a purpose back of it all.
That purpose is not plain. It apparently is not intended for us to perceive the veil. Men of all generations, for thousands of years have attempted to solve the riddle of life and death, and we are not much nearer to the answer than were the cave men.
But it seems gradually to be dawning on humanity, that is here on earth to improve
each person individually,
our real function in life.
The struggle is a mere though a deal with matter in the mind is the abode of real good, real failure, real Nothing is finally left of thought and spirit—Mortutan.

EAGER TO COME TO CANADA

This photograph was taken at the European head office of the Canadian Pacific Railway in London, England, and shows a number of men who were induced by the special harvesters rate to make further enquiries with regard to the scheme and conditions to be expected here after the harvest. Nearly thousand men, the first to come within the Canadian immigrant class in years, were recruited by the Canadian Pacific, and lack of steamship accommodation necessitated the closing of the doors against almost as many more.

France Restores Land

Country is Now Most Prosperous One in Europe

Practically all lands in France of the better quality have been restored to cultivation. Out of more than 5,000,000 acres to be re-landed, 4,100,000 acres had been reclaimed by September 1st, while much of the remaining is unproductive soil which will only be put into cultivation again when economic pressure compels.

France according to the usual trade indices, is the most prosperous country in Europe today, not excluding countries like Holland and Switzerland, whose currencies are practically at par.

PALE FACES AND WORN OUT NERVES

Due Specially to Weak, Watery Blood—

A Tonic Is Needed—Anemia—literally impoverished blood—comes on so stealthily that it is often well advanced before its presence is recognized. Feelings of fatigue and discomfort are the earliest manifestations of the trouble and these are seldom taken seriously. Gradually small tasks become an effort and exertion causes the heart to palpitate violently. The complexion becomes sallow or pale and there is loss of weight. The nerves grow weak and the victim displays irritability under slight provocation and is extremely sensitive to noise. The appetite is feeble and indigestion follows.

A condition of anemia calls for a tonic, one that will enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves, and for this purpose there is nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills give the blood all these missing elements necessary to give strength to the nerves, color to the cheeks, and nourishment to starved organs and tissues. Miss Margaret J. Plaster, R.R. 2, Thessalon, Ont., has proved the value of this treatment. She says: "I was very pale and weak. My blood was poor and I was very nervous. I had no appetite, my feet and ankles were swollen and I was in a very miserable condition. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got two boxes and found before they were finished that they were helping me. I continued the pills until I had taken a half-dozen boxes, with the result that I am now enjoying the best of health, all symptoms having disappeared. I feel confident that what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me they will do for others. It given a fair trial."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Discusses Leaders of Literature

Mr. Adcock's New Book Deals With Prominent Authors

No living critic has more right to discuss the leaders of modern literature than Mr. A. St. John Adcock, now editor in chief of the London Bookman. Mr. Adcock is exercising this right in a very fine book by him, entitled "Clods of Modern Criticism."

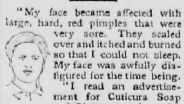

It is now announced by his London publishers and it will be tested in the London early in September by the Methuen Book Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Some thirty-two of the most prominent authors will be dealt with, each subject illustrated with a studio portrait by Sir G. H. Hooper. The following will be included: John Galsworthy, W. J. Locke, Sheila Kaye-Smith, H. G. Wells, Bonn Byrne, A. S. M. Hutchinson, etc., etc.

So good does this work promise to be that the demand for it in the Dominion should be considerable.

Shipments From Vancouver Port

Rapid Increase in Export of Wheat and Flour

That this port is one of the logical shipping points of flour and wheat to Great Britain and the Orient, is evidenced by the rapid increase in exports of these commodities. Two or three years ago shipments to the Orient constituted a negligible quantity today they amount to several million bushels of wheat and hundreds of thousands of barrels of wheat flour. During the past six months the flour and grain exports amounted to half a million barrels and over ten million bushels respectively, according to a statement issued by the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange. This is an increase compared with the corresponding time of last year of nearly five million bushels of wheat and several hundred thousand barrels of flour.

HER BABY SUFFERED WITH SUMMER COMPLAINT

A fact mother must face is that summer complaint with the protrusion, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease, makes it one of the most serious and dangerous to contend with during the hot months.

Thousands of infants die annually whose lives could have no doubt been saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it has been the experience of thousands of mothers during the past 78 years this valuable preparation has been on the market, that it is the safest and most effective remedy for use in all cases of looseness of the bowels.

Mrs. S. Langlois, Great Desert, Ont., writes: "My baby, when a year old, was suffering with summer complaint. Two doctors attended him, but nothing would stop the vomiting and diarrhoea. A friend told me to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and after the second dose the baby was better and I can say it saved my baby's life."

I wouldn't be without a bottle of Dr. Fowler's in the house for untold good."

A Flying Mail Train

Expert Sorters Work Same As On Railway Train

A "flying mail train" is the latest type of airplane to be developed in England.

In the plane's mail chamber, says the Daily Chronicle's aeronautical expert, sorters will be able to carry on their work as they might in a rail way mail train. It will have a radius of 2,000 miles and will be able to stay in the air 24 hours without alighting. The crew in charge will be provided with regular sleeping quarters on board. They will, in fact, work in shifts while in the air, some of them sleeping while others are on duty in the control chamber.

If necessary, when flying at night or immersed in fog or cloud, the crew will be able to bring into play mechanisms which will endow the craft with the power of automatic self-guidance. The machine will virtually fly itself, and all the personnel will have to do will be to keep it on a compass course by means of the rudder.

Fundamentals

The right to work, the right to trade, the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, have not yet been passed over to anybody to exercise arbitrarily over anybody else. Ottawa Sometimes Breaks Rule

Forward Live Chickens Through Mail Although Against Regulations

Although the shipping of live chickens through the mails by parcel post is prohibited in Canada the officials of the post office occasionally receive shipments of live chicks which have been accepted in the United States for delivery in Canada. The officials have the power to refuse the shipments and send them back to the point of shipping, but as this in most cases would mean the death of the chicks, the officials usually send the chickens to their destination.

Many people wonder how it is that small chicks, only a few hours hatched, can go a journey taking anywhere from 12 hours to three days, without food and yet arrive alive. The explanation is that a chick when hatched does not require food for from 10 to 72 hours. The chick is ordered by the postmen some days before it is hatched and when the hatch is hatched it is put into a specially prepared cage right away and started on its journey to the purchaser. As a rule all the chicks in the shipments come through their first adventure in life in good health.

Only the unfortunates endure the agony of corns. The knowing ones apply Holloway's Corn Remover and get relief.

Substitute For Flax

Flax, heretofore made exclusively from flax, has been growing dearer and scarcer. In proportion as the flax plant has become rarer and more difficult to cultivate. Now, it is said, a satisfactory substitute has been found in the flax lily, which grows in abundance in New Zealand. The plant will grow admirably in many parts of Europe and North America. It is far easier to cultivate than flax itself, and it has a yield of 2,240 pounds to the acre.

Swims English Channel

American Is Third Man to Accomplish Hazardous Feat

Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., has succeeded in swimming the English Channel, according to a Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. He reached Oostend after swimming a distance of 90 kilometers, or nearly 60 miles.

Sullivan landed in front of the Calais Casino. His time was 25 hours 50 minutes.

Sullivan is the third man to accomplish the hazardous feat of swimming the English Channel. The first man to make the passage across so narrow but always choppy waters, with its tides and eddies, was Captain Matthew Webb, and the second T. W. Burgess, both Englishmen. Sullivan made the swim on August 24-25, 1924, in 21 hours 42 minutes. Burgess accomplished the feat on September 6, 1911, swimming from South Portland, England, to Le Havre, France. His time was 22 hours and 55 minutes. The present was Sullivan's second attempt. There has been standing for a long time, an offer of a London publication of a prize of $5,000 for the successful crossing of the channel by a man or woman swimmer.
